General Marking Guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the first candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the last.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- There is no ceiling on achievement. All marks on the mark scheme should be used appropriately.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate's response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification may be limited.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate's response, the team leader must be consulted.
- Crossed out work should be marked UNLESS the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response.

How to award marks when level descriptions are used

1. Finding the right level

The first stage is to decide which level the answer should be placed in. To do this, use a 'best-fit' approach, deciding which level most closely describes the quality of the answer. Answers can display characteristics from more than one level, and where this happens markers must use the guidance below and their professional judgement to decide which level is most appropriate.

For example, one stronger passage at L4 would not by itself merit a L4 mark, but it might be evidence to support a high L3 mark, unless there are substantial weaknesses in other areas. Similarly, an answer that fits best in L3 but which has some characteristics of L2 might be placed at the bottom of L3. An answer displaying some characteristics of L3 and some of L1 might be placed in L2.

2. Finding a mark within a level

After a level has been decided on, the next stage is to decide on the mark within the level. The instructions below tell you how to reward responses within a level. However, where a level has specific guidance about how to place an answer within a level, always follow that guidance.

Levels containing two marks only

Start with the presumption that the work will be at the top of the level. Move down to the lower mark if the work only just meets the requirements of the level.

Levels containing three or more marks

Markers should be prepared to use the full range of marks available in a level and not restrict marks to the middle. Markers should start at the middle of the level (or the upper-middle mark if there is an even number of marks) and then move the mark up or down to find the best mark. To do this, they should take into account how far the answer meets the requirements of the level:

- If it meets the requirements fully, markers should be prepared to award full marks within the level. The top mark in the level is used for answers that are as good as can realistically be expected within that level
- If it only barely meets the requirements of the level, markers should consider awarding marks at the bottom of the level. The bottom mark in the level is used for answers that are the weakest that can be expected within that level
- The middle marks of the level are used for answers that have a reasonable match to the descriptor. This might represent a balance between some characteristics of the level that are fully met and others that are only barely met.

Indicative content

Examiners are reminded that indicative content is provided as an illustration to markers of some of the material that may be offered by students. It does not show required content and alternatives should be credited where valid.

Modern depth study: The USA, 1954-75: conflict at home and abroad

Question
1	Give two things you can infer from Source A about the Strategic Hamlet Program in Vietnam. Target: Source analysis (making inferences). AO3: 4 marks.
Marking instructions
Award 1 mark for each valid inference up to a maximum of two inferences. The second mark for each example should be awarded for supporting detail selected from the source. e.g. <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• The Strategic Hamlet Program was seen as a success (1). The Program was to be expanded to cover more areas (1).</li><li>• The Program was a defensive measure (1). There were concentric lines of defence around the hamlet and the main residential areas were inside the lines of defence (1).</li><li>• The Strategic Hamlet Program could have been used as a method of control (1). The ditch and mound would have restricted access into and out of the hamlets (1).</li></ul> Accept other appropriate alternatives.

Question
2		Explain why the USA was involved in the peace negotiations (1972-73) about the war in Vietnam.  You may use the following in your answer: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• President Nixon</li> <li>• Ho Chi Minh trail</li> </ul> You must also use information of your own.  Target: Analysis of second order concepts: causation [AO2];  Knowledge and understanding of features and characteristics [AO1].  AO2: 6 marks.  AO1: 6 marks.
Level	Mark	Descriptor
	0	No rewardable material.
1	1-3	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• A simple or generalised answer is given, lacking development and organisation. [AO2]</li> <li>• Limited knowledge and understanding of the topic is shown. [AO1]</li> </ul>

[AO1]</li> </ul> No access to Level 4 for answers which do not go beyond aspects prompted by the stimulus points.

Marking instructions

Performance in AO1 and AO2 is interdependent. An answer displaying no qualities of AO2 cannot be awarded more than the top of Level 1, no matter how strong performance is in AO1; markers should note that the expectation for AO1 is that candidates demonstrate both knowledge and understanding.

The middle mark in each level may be achieved by stronger performance in either AO1 or AO2.

Indicative content guidance

Answers must be credited according to candidates' deployment of material in relation to the qualities outlined in the mark scheme. While specific references are made in the indicative content below, this does not imply that these must be included; other relevant material must also be credited.

Relevant points may include:

- President Nixon had been elected on a programme which included a promise to work towards the end of the war.
- Nixon's policy of Vietnamisation aimed to equip South Vietnamese forces to be able to conduct their own defence, meaning that US forces would not need to be involved.
- The US realised that a military end to the war was unlikely because the Vietcong was still being supplied along the Ho Chi Minh trail, mitigating the effects of sustained American bombing and creating frustration within the USA over the prolonged war.
- Opposition to the war had escalated within the USA, e.g. following the media coverage of both the trial of Lieutenant Calley and the deaths at the student protest at Kent State University, 1970.
- The war was very expensive and the USA had little to show for the investment of money and troops.
- Changing international relations, such as détente and a rapprochement with China, meant that the USA wanted to withdraw from the war.

Question
3 (a)		How useful are Sources B and C for an enquiry into the Freedom Summer (1964)? Explain your answer, using Sources B and C and your knowledge of the historical context. Target: Analysis and evaluation of source utility. A03: 8 marks.
Level	Mark	Descriptor
	0	No rewardable material.
1	1–2	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>A simple judgement on utility is given, and supported by undeveloped comment on the content of the sources and/or their provenance<sup>1</sup>. Simple comprehension of the source material is shown by the extraction or paraphrase of some content. Limited contextual knowledge is deployed with links to the sources.</li> </ul>
2	3–5	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Judgements on source utility for the specified enquiry are given, using valid criteria. 3	6–8	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Judgements on source utility for the specified enquiry are given, applying valid criteria with developed reasoning which takes into account how the provenance<sup>1</sup> affects the usefulness of the source content. Notes 1. Provenance = nature, origin, purpose.
Marking instructions Markers must apply the descriptors above in line with the general marking guidance (page 3). No credit may be given for contextual knowledge unless it is linked to evaluation of the sources. No credit may be given for generic comments on provenance which are not used to evaluate source content.
Indicative content guidance Answers must be credited according to candidates' deployment of material in relation to the qualities outlined in the mark scheme. While specific references are made in the indicative content below, this does not imply that these must be included; other relevant material must also be credited. The grouping of points below does not imply that this is how candidates are expected to structure their answers.
Source B The usefulness could be identified in terms of the following points which could be drawn from the source: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Source B shows that some black Americans felt that the Freedom Summer had a positive impact on their situation and claimed it was a turning point in their struggle for civil rights.</li> <li>Source B claims that the Freedom Summer changed attitudes and made black Americans more willing to organise campaigns for their civil rights.</li> <li>The source suggests that some black Americans appreciated the work of white volunteers.</li> </ul> The following points could be made about the authorship, nature or purpose of the source and applied to ascribe usefulness to material drawn from it: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>The source is from someone who attended a Freedom School and benefited from the activities of the Freedom Summer, which could explain why he has a positive view of the events.</li> </ul>

- Gandy is commenting with hindsight and sees the Freedom Summer as a key point in his own development as an activist, so he may be influenced by that to emphasise the significance of the Freedom Summer.

Knowledge of the historical context should be deployed to support inferences and/or to assess the usefulness of information. Relevant points may include:

- Educational provision for black American children in the South was poor, so Freedom Schools were set up and run by volunteers during the summer of 1964 to help children become better educated and be in a position to gain qualifications.
- The Freedom Summer focused especially on southern states such as Mississippi, where few black Americans were registered to vote.
- White and black activists had worked together in sit-ins in 1960 and as Freedom Riders in 1961 and SNCC knew that the involvement of white activists generated more publicity, so a deliberate policy was adopted to involve middle-class white students in the summer voter registration campaign.

Source C

The usefulness could be identified in terms of the following points which could be drawn from the source:

- The source suggests that church buildings and church leaders were targeted for attack, as they were involved in Freedom Schools and voter registration rallies.
- The source highlights the role of the police in the harassment of civil rights activists.
- Source C illustrates the range of methods used to intimidate civil rights activists and to prevent media coverage of events.

The following points could be made about the authorship, nature or purpose of the source and applied to ascribe usefulness to material drawn from it:

- The organisers of the Mississippi Freedom Summer would have been in contact with all the local workers and therefore could receive accurate reports of harassment.
- The authors of the document aimed to record the nature and extent of the harassment faced by civil rights workers, to draw attention to the problem of black American voter registration in Mississippi, so it is possible that some of the incidents have been portrayed as more serious than they were.

Knowledge of the historical context should be deployed to support inferences and/or to assess the usefulness of information. Relevant points may include:

- The murder of three civil rights workers in Mississippi during this summer gained a great deal of national publicity because two of them were white activists.
- Churches played an important role in the civil rights movement, for example the role of the SLCC and the leadership of Martin Luther King.

Question
3 (b)		Study Interpretations 1 and 2. They give different views about the Freedom Summer (1964). What is the main difference between these views? Explain your answer, using details from both interpretations. Target: Analysis of interpretations (how they differ).  AO4: 4 marks.
Level	Mark	Descriptor
	0	No rewardable material.
1	1–2	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Limited analysis of the interpretations is shown by the extraction or paraphrase of some content, but differences of surface detail only are given, or a difference of view is asserted without direct support.</li> </ul>
2	3–4	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>The interpretations are analysed and a key difference of view is identified and supported from them.</li> </ul>

Question
3 (c)		Suggest one reason why Interpretations 1 and 2 give different views about the Freedom Summer (1964). You may use Sources B and C to help explain your answer.  Target: Analysis of interpretations (why they differ). AO4: 4 marks.
Level	Mark	Descriptor
	0	No rewardable material.
1	1–2	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>A simple valid explanation is offered but displaying only limited analysis. Support for the explanation is based on simple undeveloped comment or on the selection of details from the provided material or own knowledge, with only implied linkage to the explanation.</li> </ul>
2	3–4	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>An explanation of a reason for difference is given, analysing the interpretations. The explanation is substantiated effectively.</li> </ul>

Marking instructions

Indicative content guidance

Answers must be credited according to candidates' deployment of material in relation to the qualities outlined in the mark scheme. The indicative content below is not prescriptive. The examples below show different approaches to explaining difference, any one of which may be valid. Other valid material must be credited.

- The interpretations may differ because they have given weight to different sources. For example, Source B suggests the Freedom Summer had a significant impact on the lives of those involved, which provides support for Interpretation 1's claim that the Freedom Schools and voter registration programme were successful. Source C provides details of the attacks and intimidation used against the activists, which provides some support for Interpretation 2's suggestion that there were attacks on the activists and a limited achievement in the increase in voter registration.
- The interpretations may differ because they are considering different aspects of the Freedom Summer. Interpretation 1 is emphasising what was done in practical terms, for example schools and voter registration campaigns, whereas Interpretation 2 is emphasising negative reactions, such as attacks on civil rights workers by Freedom Summer opponents and the questioning of Freedom Summer by black American activists of the tactics used.
- They may differ because the authors have a different emphasis – Interpretation 1 is from the point of view that the Freedom Summer was a significant event, leading many others to become active in the campaigns; Interpretation 2 is suggesting that it had limited impact and that it led to people questioning the methods used.

Question
3 (d)		How far do you agree with Interpretation 2 about the Freedom Summer (1964)? Explain your answer, using both interpretations, and your knowledge of the historical context.  Target: Analysis and evaluation of interpretations. AO4: 16 marks. Spelling, punctuation, grammar and the use of specialist terminology (SPaG): up to 4 additional marks.

3	9–12	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Answer provides an explained evaluation, agreeing or disagreeing with the interpretation. Good analysis of the interpretations is shown indicating difference of view and deploying this to support the evaluation. Relevant contextual knowledge is used directly to support the evaluation. 4	13–16	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Answer provides an explained evaluation reviewing the alternative views in coming to a substantiated judgement. ### Marking instructions

No credit may be given for contextual knowledge unless it is linked to evaluation of the interpretations.

In all levels, the second sentence relates to analysis and while the rest relate to evaluation. The following rules will apply:

- In Level 1, answers that meet the requirements only in relation to analysis without evidence of evaluation should be awarded 1 mark.
- In other levels, answers that meet the requirements only in relation to analysis (but that also fully meet the descriptors for evaluation of the level below) should be awarded no more than the bottom mark in the level.

Indicative content guidance

Answers must be credited according to candidates' deployment of material in relation to the qualities outlined in the mark scheme. While specific references are made in the indicative content below, this does not imply that these must be included; other relevant material must also be credited. The grouping of points below does not imply that this is how candidates are expected to structure their answers.

The interpretation to be evaluated suggests that the Freedom Summer achieved very little in terms of progress for the civil rights movement.

Relevant points from the provided material and own knowledge which support the claim made in the interpretation may include:

- Interpretation 2 states that the Freedom Summer could be seen as a failure because so few black Americans became registered to vote.
- Interpretation 2 states that the cost of the failure of the Freedom Summer led some civil rights workers to become disillusioned with the idea of non-violence.
- Interpretation 2 states that the failure of the Freedom Summer led some black American activists to reject the involvement of white civil rights workers.
- Attacks on civil rights workers were carried out with impunity since the authorities were often involved in the attacks.
- After the Freedom Summer, the volunteers returned to the North while activists in the South continued to face harassment and persecution.
- The publicity about the murders of Chaney, Schwerner and Goodman contributed to long-term divisions within the civil rights movement over the use of non-violent tactics.

Relevant points from the provided material and own knowledge which counter the view may include:

- Interpretation 1 suggests that the Freedom Summer led to progress in civil rights because so many people were involved in voter registration preparation.
- Interpretation 1 suggests that the Freedom Summer would help to develop black Americans' pride by providing education not only in key skills but also in black American history.
- Interpretation 1 shows that the Freedom Summer was intended to have long-lasting effects, not just by encouraging black Americans to participate in politics but also by training them to be able to lead more civil rights campaigns in the future.
- The Freedom Summer involved a number of civil rights groups acting in combination, showing a new level of cooperation in the movement.
- The involvement of so many students from the North led to publicity and a better understanding of the problems faced by black Americans in the South.
- The passing of the Voting Rights Act (1965) suggests that the campaigns of the Freedom Summer had an impact on national affairs.
